Project Storyboard

My flash project is a tutorial about how to convert HTML to XHTML. It includes three sections: an introduction, converting steps, and a quiz.

Page 1 of 6

Page content:
- Gradient background;
- Title “Convert HTML to XHTML” showing up from left to right under a mask layer;
- Button “Start” fading in after the title shows.

Interaction:
- Click “start” button to start the tutorial.
Page content:

- At first, the background changes: a solid blue banner comes down from the top, while the gradient background changes smaller at the same time;
- Title moves from center to the left-up corner and scales down;
- Navigation displays, showing that the page is in which section;
- Then a subtitle moves into the stage from left to right under a mask layer, which helps the subtitle not appear at the margin space;
- At the same time, content appears from the center of the stage until it shows up.

Interaction:

- Click “next” button to display next page;
- Click “Steps” or “Quiz” in the navigation to jump to other sections.

All content of the “Introduction” section is contained in one movie clip, and an Actionscript attached to the “next” button will display next page.
Page content:

- From this page, it is in the second section “Steps”, showing 5 steps to convert HTML to XHTML, including instruction information and examples.
- First, the background changes, indicating it is a different section. A solid blue banner moves down from the top, and the gradient background changes smaller;
- Then the title fades in;
- A slightly different navigation bar appears;
- Then a subtitle moves into the stage from left to right under a mask layer;
- At the same time, content appears from the center of the stage until it shows up.

Interaction:

- Click “next” button to display next page;
- Click “Intro” or “Quiz” in the navigation to jump to other sections.
