Several months ago, I helped create what I call our “If You Like...” wall at Kendallville Public Library. We had a lot of extra wall space to work with since we had recently removed a counter and some computers. However, not every library will have this amount of wall space available to them, so for Project 3, I have created smaller versions of some of our “If You Like...” reader recommendations. These flyers are still centered around the tree and branches theme of the wall display, with one main branch (the main book) sprouting new branches (the recommended books). This is a simple, space-saving option for reader advisory.
